Ghosn went on to explain that there is no year-to-date for the month of June because the Fulcrum is currently transitioning from Sage to Quickbooks, and therefore all of the data is migrating over.
L. Ghosn indicated that he received the printing plan price list for the 2017-2018 rates, and that the editor-in-chief and the production manager have tentatively decided on Friday and Saturday for production days.

L. Ghosn explained that the Fulcrum’s last GIC will be ready for transition to RBC once the Fulcrum hears back from Jessica, who is the Fulcrum’s GIC contact at TD. L. Ghosn stated that the Fulcrum’s mutual fund at RBS is down $20 since the original investment.

L. Ghosn informed the Board that the Fulcrum’s pro bono lawyer has reached out to the SFUO’s lawyer for a third time and is still waiting to hear back from them. He said that the Fulcrum’s insurance lawyer has been notified by Romeo’s lawyer that they intend on suing the Fulcrum and G. Robertson. L. Ghosn assured that this won’t cost the Fulcrum any money as the Fulcrum is covered by insurance on this, and have been reassured by the Fulcrum’s insurance lawyer that Romeo is likely to lose his case. L. Ghosn suggested that he could see if the Fulcrum’s insurance lawyer is available for a call during the next Board meeting.

L. Ghosn announced that he applied for the September term for the Connexions Program to have a marketing intern, and the Fulcrum received one application. L. Ghosn said that the applicant is coming back to Ottawa next week and that he and E. Davidson will meet with him to discuss the opportunity of being the Fulcrum’s marketing intern in September.

L. Ghosn mentioned that the Telfer Marketing Association has been very helpful in sharing the Fulcrum’s job postings that are relevant to their network.

L. Ghosn indicated that J. St Jacques has been informed of the Fulcrum’s social media manager hiring, and has said that he is ready to start the social growth program once he returns from vacation.

L. Ghosn went on to inform the Board that K. Bobal has been going over the policies and the ad bible this week and is starting to familiarize himself with the Fulcrum’s internal processes. He noted that business cards will be ordered soon so that K. Bobal can begin canvassing.

L. Ghosn concluded his report with a human resources update. He stated that the social media manager and sports editor positions will need to be ratified by the Board. L. Ghosn continued his update by saying that there are upcoming interviews scheduled for arts/culture, sports, opinions, and news positions, and that the Fulcrum is still accepting applications for the visual editor position.

6. Advertising Representative
K. Bobal began by introducing himself to the Board.

K. Bobal went to explain that he spent his first few days familiarizing himself with the Fulcrum by reviewing the ad bible, going over contra, discount prices on complimentary ads, and special rates. K. Bobal continued to say that he has also spent some time reading through old emails with previous clients. He mentioned that L. Ghosn briefed him on where to locate files on the shared Google drive.

K. Bobal mentioned that he has also spent time responding to emails from old and new clients who reached out just to inform them of the change in position and to let them know of the change in position and that the Fulcrum is still waiting on the ad rate cards.

K. Bobal concluded his report by asking a few questions to the Board:
- when will the ad rate and production schedule be ready to give to clients?
- when can he go over and sign his contract?

7. Editor-in-Chief

E. Davidson announced that the hiring committee has been making some really great progress. He noted that the Hiring committee have hired a new social media manager, a guy named Dmitri Bakker. The committee decided that his extensive experience will make him perfect for the role, and they believe that his biggest strengths will be managing the portfolio efficiently, managing section editors with regards to social content, and helping develop the role. He also went on to mention that Savannah Awde has been hired as the features editor, and Nico Laliberté as the sports editor.

E. Davidson explained that the hiring committee have finished testing and are in the process of interviewing candidates for the news, arts, and opinions sections. He said that the committee has been heavily promoting the visual editor position, and has received its first application through the Digital Journalism program. E. Davidson indicated that the associate sports and Dear Di positions will be opening this week, and the photographer and videographer positions will open once the visual editor is hired. He admitted that while hiring has been going a bit slower than in previous years, he believes this is in large part due to the high volume of very qualified applicants.

S. Murdock asked when D. Bakker starts. L. Ghosn replied that he begins this week. Discussion then ensued on reposting archived content. S. Murdock suggested that the Fulcrum use an archive disclaimer when reposting previous content.

With regards to content, E. Davidson mentioned that he and G. Robertson have been attending university board meetings, SFUO and CFS meetings, and have been reporting on other angles of big stories on campus, such as the tuition raise. E. Davidson admitted that with apart from attending these meetings, most of his time has been spent with hiring and taking care of institutional matters, and as such, he said that the Fulcrum’s content isn’t as strong as it could be right now. With that said though, E. Davidson reassured the Board that once D. Bakker begins working, he can bring back the Fulcrum’s constant stream of recycled content, which he believes will help a lot. He went on to explain that he believes that using the freelance fund to pay for the section editors to write will lead to more content from them than in previous years.

E. Davidson proceeded to give the Board an update on the Fulcrum podcast, noting that the SoundCloud account is up and running, and is just waiting for audio. He went on to announce that he has three podcast interviews lined up for later in the week, and in addition to the audio, he is going to see if he can record video as well.

E. Davidson mentioned that he’s been doing a lot of research and talking to EICs of other newspapers to see how they run their production schedules. He explained that after talking with J. McRae-Sadik, G. Robertson, S. Awde, and L. Ghosn about how to revamp the Fulcrum’s production schedule to make it more effective this year, they decided that the best option is to move the Fulcrum’s release date from Thursday to Monday.

E. Davidson concluded his report by updating the Board on his meeting with Gabriella, the head of the digital journalism faculty. He said that the Fulcrum and the faculty are still going to move ahead with an intern for next summer, who would be shadowing the editor-in-chief. E. Davidson went on to explain that he is in the process of setting up two waves of class talks students in the faculty. He also noted that he’s heard a few people mention that it would be great if the Fulcrum could put on more events this year, and Gabriella even mentioned that the faculty of digital journalism would love to work with the Fulcrum on some of these events, and encouraged the Fulcrum to apply for funding for NASH again.

J. Rausseo asked if the podcasts will be available on the Fulcrum’s website. E. Davidson responded that they would be. L. Ghosn suggested that E. Davidson talk to D. Bakker about making a plan to promote the podcasts on social media. E. Davidson added that the Fulcrum could have an update show every week. F. Azzi wondered what the purpose of the podcasts are. E. Davidson explained that the podcasts are another way for people to get the news, and they’re also a way to hear longer interviews. R. Sheikh-Khalil proposed that E. Davidson could work with K. Bobal about getting sponsors.
